Mother Of Mrs. Tuck Wilson Dies Monday At Ech, Holland

Mrs. Helene Peters, mother of Mrs. Albert L. Tuck Wilson of Murray Road Three, died Monday at her home in Ech, Holland.

Mrs. Peters was well known by many people in Murray and Calloway County as she and her husband, Hendrick Peters, had visited their daughter and family here two times with the last visit being for a year.

Word was received of her critical illness here last week and Mrs. Wilson left by plane to be at her mother's bedside. It was through the efforts of Congressman and Mrs. Frank Albert Stubbfield that Mrs. Wilson was able to get her passport and passage so quickly.

Funeral and burial services will be held in Holland on Thursday. Mrs. Wilson will return to Murray in a few days. She is employed at the Murray-Calloway County Health Center. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were married seventeen years ago in Holland and they have one daughter, Patricia, age 15, student at Calloway County High School and one son, Mark, age nine, student at Paxon Elementary School.

The Wilsons own a farm in the Paxon community.

Negro Cabinet Member Is Under Fire

WASHINGTON (UP) — The nation's first Negro cabinet member came under fire today for not knowing whether federal funds were being used to finance slums.

A sharp exchange occurred between Secretary Robert C. Weaver of the Department of Housing and Urban Development and Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.

Ribicoff is heading a Senate investigation into the use of federal funds to combat urban slums.

Ribicoff cited figures showing the majority of welfare recipients were living in substandard housing throughout the nation's cities.

"Are the taxpayers, the federal government, local governments supporting slum lords?" Ribicoff asked. "Are the sums we pay to welfare recipients being turned over to slum owners?"

"I think there is some degree of this," answered Weaver.

"You don't have the slightest idea," Ribicoff shot back. "Your department has never made a study of this situation. And if this is true, it's a shocking situation."

"I wouldn't say I didn't have the slightest idea," said Weaver. "We've made studies but they're not representative." He did not discuss the results.

Ribicoff is chairman of the Senate subcommittee on executive organization, which also is investigating the underlying causes of ghetto violence.

Weaver also conceded that some federally financed urban renewal programs in the past had turned into what one congressman called "Negro removal" projects.

Callowayans Aid In Search For Boy

Persons from Calloway County were called out yesterday to aid in the search of Jerry Barrett of Possum Trot who was reported lost while squirrel hunting in Clark's River bottoms.

Authorities said that Barrett and his brother, Kenneth, were hunting and the other brother returned home at four p.m. Sunday and reported Jerry was lost. A search was started by groups from Marshall, McCord, Graves, and Calloway residents.

Reports are that Jerry said he realized he was lost when darkness came on Sunday night and he just stopped and slept on the ground until daylight. He was reported found at six a.m. on Monday, when he found his way out after the daylight hour.

New Zones Are Set Forth To Comply With Federal Edicts

All the schools of the Murray City School System will open on August 25, for the registration of all pupils, according to Fred Schultz, superintendent of schools. In accordance with the School Board's plan for desegregation, this school district has been divided into four elementary school attendance zones. These zones, as follows, Schultz said.

Douglas Elementary Zone: This zone begins at a point where Chestnut Street, if extended, would intersect Clark's River, runs West along the center of Chestnut Street until a point is reached just West of 5th Street, runs South from Chestnut Street (including both sides of 5th Street) until this line intersects a line just South of Sycamore, and then turns East and runs to Clark's River.

Austin Elementary Zone: This zone begins at a point on Chestnut Street just West of 5th Street and runs in a westerly direction on Chestnut to a point just West of 10th Street. From this point the zone turns South and runs just West of 10th Street (including both sides of 10th Street) until a point is reached just South of Sycamore. From this point the zone runs East (including both sides of Sycamore) until a point is reached just West of 5th Street.

Carter Elementary Zone: This zone begins at a point on Chestnut Street just West of 10th Street and runs West on Chestnut to a point just West of North 14th Street. From this point the zone runs South along 14th Street and Woodlawn (including both sides of these streets) until a point is reached just South of Story Avenue, and then runs East along Story and (including both sides of Story) until a point is reached just West of 10th Street. From this point the zone runs South (including both sides of 10th Street to Clark's River). The Carter Zone follows Clark's River until a point is reached just South of where Sycamore, if extended, would intersect Clark's River.

Robertson Elementary Zone: This zone begins on Chestnut Street at a point just West of 14th Street and runs West to North 14th Street. From this intersection the zone runs East until a point is reached just South of a point approximately 150 feet North of Valentine Drive. From this point it turns West and runs West to the East boundary of the C. L. Sharbrough property. From this point the zone runs South until it intersects the Calloway Farm Road. The zone then runs West along College Farm Road to the East line of the University Experiment Farm. From this point the zone runs South to the Lynn Grove Highway. The zone runs from this intersection East along the highway to the Doran Road and runs South along the Doran Road until a point is reached approximately 300 feet from the Martin Chapel Road and from this point East to South 16th Street and from South 16th Street South to Clark's River. This zone follows Clark's River to the Carter Zone.

Elementary pupils should report to the school in their zone where they have previously registered or to the school that they have requested by letter to transfer to.

Murray High School students, grades 8-12, will assemble in the auditorium at 8:30 a.m. August 25, for opening exercises and registration. Seventh grade orientation will be held Wednesday, August 24, at 9:00 a.m. in the high school auditorium.

The Austin, Carter, Robertson, and Douglas Elementary Schools will register on August 25, according to the following schedule:

Russell Calls For Duty For Reserve Force

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Senate was asked today to vote President Johnson the authority to call up certain military reservists for Viet Nam service without a formal declaration of a national emergency.

Members of the ready reserve who have had no active duty other than training would be liable for up to 18 months of service under an "equality of service" proposal offered by Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

Russell is floor manager for the $68.2 billion defense appropriations bill which went before the Senate today. He offered the reserve proposals as an amendment to the appropriations bill.

The proposal underscored the Senate Appropriations Committee's call that the administration give immediate consideration to calling up reservists for Viet Nam service. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara opposes any such action now.

The President now has the authority to call up for active duty up to a million reservists after declaring a national emergency. In the past, ready reserves have generally been called by units or procedures which catches veterans and trainees alike.

Russell said he thinks the President has authority to call reservists now, and to call them on an individual basis so as not to call men who have joined the reserves after service in Viet Nam or elsewhere. Some doubts as to the President's authority have been expressed in the Pentagon, he said, and his amendment would eliminate any restrictions.

Quotes In The News

NEW YORK — Matt Meyer, president of the World Journal Tribune Inc., commenting on the demise of the Herald Tribune:

"Because of our inability to begin publication as planned last April 25 and because of rumors which have surfaced from time to time, talent in all creative departments of Herald Tribune has been drained away. It has now reached the point where we cannot bring the public the kind of morning newspaper hoped for. We are unwilling to settle for less."

WASHINGTON — Rep. Joe E. Pool, D-Tex., regarding a court injunction against a hearing to be held by the House Un-American Activities Committee:

"I'll stay in jail until hell freezes over if necessary. I think it's my duty to the boys fighting in Viet Nam in the foxholes."

CHICAGO — Albert A. Raby, head of the local group that has been organizing Negro protest marches in Chicago:

"We're not going to sit down and negotiate to stop marching. We've had promises in Chicago for five years. This time we're saying to them, 'you do it, and if housing opens up, we'll stop marching, and not before.'"

NEW YORK — Burton Benjamin, executive producer of CBS' new television series "The 21st Century," regarding the new series:

"This project fascinates me. The 21st century is closer than you think. The year 2000 is only as far in the future as President Roosevelt's first term or Hitler's rise to power in Germany in the past."

Astronauts To Reach Out 862 Miles

CAPE KENNEDY — Gemini II astronauts Charles Conrad and Richard Gordon are scheduled for launch Sept. 9 on a daring flight that will take them a record 862 miles high and send them cartwheeling through space tied to another satellite.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration Thursday decided final plans for the ambitious mission — the next to the last in the Project Gemini series. The distance goal set in space will almost double that reached by Gemini 10.

The Titanor flight is scheduled to begin at 8:45 a. m. EDT when an Atlas booster hurled Gemini's Agena target rocket toward space. Ninety-seven minutes later, Conrad and Gordon will take off in pursuit. They will attempt to catch up with the orbiting Agena on Gemini II.

Boog Powell Leads AL In RBI With 92

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

Boog Powell isn't sure what it is but he must be doing something right.

Back on May 20 the hulking, 245-pound Baltimore Oriole first baseman wasn't hitting anywhere near his weight with an anemic .160 average.

Now less than two months later, Powell is hitting .298, leading the major leagues in run-batted-in with 92. He is also second in the American League in homers with 30.

Powell continued his surge Monday night when he hit three homers in one game for the third time in his career to give the league-leading Orioles a 4-2 11-inning triumph over the Boston Red Sox that continued the Oriole romp to their first modern day pennant.

Home Wins Game

Powell's second homer tied the game in the ninth inning and his third, a two-run shot in the 11th, won it as he knocked in all four Oriole runs.

What caused the change in Powell?

"I wish I knew," Powell said simply, "because then I would have started to do it sooner."

Whatever is causing the surge, the Orioles aren't trying to figure it out—they're just enjoying it.

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit topped New York 6-5, Chicago beat Kansas City 4-3 in 10 innings, Minnesota edged California, 5-3 and Cleveland topped Washington, 4-3.

In the National League, Los Angeles topped Cincinnati, 4-3, Atlanta defeated Houston, 4-2, and Philadelphia drubbed Chicago, 11-5.

After Powell hit his first homer in the fourth inning, the Red Sox took a 2-1 lead in the sixth on Tony Conigliaro's two-run homer.

But Powell hit his second off starter Jim Lonborg in the ninth to send the game into extra innings and then connected again off reliever John Wyatt in the 11th to decide the game. Ed Fisher got the victory in relief for the Orioles although he needed help from Dick Hall in the 11th.

Triple Highlights Inning

Jim Kaut tripled in two runs to highlight a three-run seventh inning and give Minnesota its triumph. Kaut also scattered 10 hits to boost his record to 119 while George Brunet suffered the loss. Harmon Killebrew hit a two-run homer for the Twins while Joe Adcock hit two solo homers for the Angels.

Don Buford singled in Al Weis with one out in the 10th, tying the game and setting up a three-run New York ninth inning rally that included Tom Tresh's two-run homer, Mickey Lolich, knocked out in the ninth, got the victory while Mel Stottlemyre suffered the loss.

Jim Gentile and Chuck Hinton each hit two-run homers to lead Cleveland to victory. Gentile's homer—his first in an Indian uniform—came in the fourth and Hinton's came in the fifth. Paul Osipowicz

Bill White First Baseman Of Philadelphia Gets Three Hits, Drives In Five Runs, Wins 11-5

By CURT BLOCK
UPI Sports Writer

If given enough sun white turns blue, the hot summer days begun to take their toll on other players, Bill White finds new life in his bat.

Like Monday night, when the Philadelphia first baseman drove in five runs with three singles to raise his game week batting average to a solid .291 as the Phils walked Chicago 11-5 and moved to within six games of first place Pittsburgh.

The left-handed hitting slugger has a history for having his greatest success after the All-Star break, as was the case in 1964 when he sparked the St. Louis Cardinals to a last day victory in the National League pennant race over the Collapsing Phillies.

Average Has Jumped

The 32-year-old infielder was hitting a scorching .298 when Philadelphia came to New York for Memorial Day, and only .263 seven weeks ago but as the summer carried on so did White and now only Richie Allen owns a superior average among the Phils.

In other National League games Los Angeles edged Cincinnati 4-3 and Atlanta trimmed Houston 4-2.

Pittsburgh, San Francisco, St. Louis and New York were idle.

In the American League, Baltimore beat Boston 4-2 in 11 innings, Detroit downed New York 6-5, Chicago defeated Kansas City 4-3 in 10 innings, Minnesota stopped California 5-3 and Cleveland edged Washington 4-3.

White's first two-run single highlighted a four-run Philadelphia first inning and he brought home two more in the second when the margin was increased to 4-0. His third hit and fifth RBI came in the eighth inning while winning pitcher Chris Short 14-7 had departed in favor of Terry Fox.

Allen, Dick Groat, Johnny Briggs and Cookie Rojas had two hits apace as the fourth place Phils the first run for Atlanta.

Lies roughed up three Cub pitchers for 13 safeties.

Game Delayed

The start of the Atlanta-Philadelphia game was delayed 30 minutes when the Astros and their equipment were retained because of the airline strike.

The late start didn't slow down Atlanta veteran Eddie Mathews who singled in one run in the first inning and slammed a two-run homer in the seventh to erase a 2-1 Houston advantage.

Tony Olmoner 11-7 gave up only five hits and fanned eight for the Braves. He also bested an infield hit in the seventh before Mathews' ninth home run. Denis Menke opened the game with a double and came around to score

Joe Morgan's fifth homer gave the Astros a 2-1 lead in the third after Sonny Jackson's single, stolen base, a wild pitch and Rusty Staub's sacrifice fly evened the count in the first inning.

Lou Johnson's two-run homer highlighted Los Angeles' four-run uprising in the fourth inning off Cincinnati loser Jim O'Toole 4-5 and helped Claude Osteen win his 13th game. Johnson socked his 10th homer after Jim Gilliam opened the inning with a single. Tommy Davis then singled, stole second and scored on Wes Parker's single. Parker went to third on Vada Pinson's wild throw trying to nail Davis at the plate and talked on John Roseboro's squeeze bunt.

CHAPTER 30

ANDERSON-SETT gave away his completely. The police way station where Ben Tozer was already in custody. He made a statement almost at once. Bascally it was very simple and direct. The first that the plot had started after the murder and the theft from Marden Court.

"What age of us knew," John Manning said to his wife Lorna, Bob Corry and Simon Kellersen at his apartment, "was that Jonathan Marden, who as you know, was always made out — he was a miser, he had hidden away a family jewels, he knew where they were and he didn't part with them. They were hidden in the false beam beneath the stairs, and Seth Tozer suspected Ben. That's why they tried to kill Ben. Made the offer for the house—through Crumble, not Anderson-Sett, who had to be kept clear of suspicion. But he couldn't say anything, so he couldn't say who wanted the house so badly."

"Seth went to look for the jewels Jonathan Marden surprised him in the act, and killed him."

"Anderson-Sett says he doesn't know exactly what followed," went on Manning, "but Jonathan Marden got away. Then Ben Tozer went away. Didn't get the jewels. You know and I know that Marden could have given himself up and pleaded justifiable homicide, but he was terrified of what he had done."

"He dreaded the thought of the Marden name being dragged through the inquiry and the message where Ben found him. Ben could give him up to the police—or have him completely in the power. He suggested Anderson-Sett—who advised holding the old man, and who admits that it was he who had the idea about making a big robbery later on."

"At first it was simply an idea he played with. But he discussed it with Ben and the practical brother. Both knew that sooner or later there would be a big fortune tucked away in the vault here, and that there would always be a lot of valuables. The idea looked foolproof. It might have been, too, but for Crumble. Marden's brother got him out of England. They gave him a false name, got him a passport, and in two months he was in a lot of trouble. He was a different man and looked more as he had when a much younger man. Very few people would have recognized him."

Kellersen shifted his position.

"You got a question, Simon?" Manning asked.

"Sure," said Kellersen. "Why repeated by arrangement with Harold Ober Associates. Distributed by King Features Syndicate."

old they trouble to being Marden, but all? Why didn't they let him in a river?"

"Very simple," said Manning. "They needed him while the police were being misled. Did Seth Tozer knew the place inside and out, so did Marden, but Ben didn't. He needed Marden's help in rebuilding the house. Incidentally, he was able to watch Marden all the time, in the hope that he would lead the way to the house."

"Did he?" Corry asked.

"Anderson-Sett said that just before Marden died, he told him he had dropped the jewels down the stairs, but he couldn't tell," Anderson answered. "By now the Tewkesbury police are probably searching that well."

"Anderson-Sett sawed off some other puzzling questions, too," went on Manning. "When this began, he and Ben were offered the jewels, but at Crumble they couldn't offer to offer for Marden Court, and they weren't positive that the jewels were there. In fact, Anderson said he had the telephone house, knowing I would get the message, about another offer for the jewels; the theory was that if they thought there was competition, I'd make up my mind quickly. At that time, Anderson-Sett, and Ben Tozer were still together, and Ben would be able to search during the demolition."

"Then came the new idea. And to make themselves doubly secure, they killed Crumble — Anderson-Sett put him down—and employed an old man from Tozer's business to do the jewelry shop. The papers which could give them the away."

"On this side, Tozer had time and room to work, but either he or Anderson-Sett was still hand, by staging the fire at the new site to make it look as if the old beams, not the new ones, were the real objective. After that, we would be very watchful of the old timbers — as we were — but they didn't take the concrete for granted."

"The real estate came on this side from when Mrs. Marden came to visit the site, and saw the old foundations," Manning went on. "They had met one forty-odd years ago — when Marden looked much as he did now. He can't remember, but he knew that she would recognize him sooner or later, probably when she got home and looked at the photographs. So Marden told Tozer, Tozer knew that once it was known that Jonathan Marden was here underground, the police investigation would bring the truth out. This thing would blow open. I'd seen him look antedotted when he was a child."

The first saw Rebecca Marden must have been a nasty shock.

"Anderson-Sett came to check on progress," went on Manning, "and he put on some old clothes, and he was looking at the murder, while Tozer was safe with his alibi. And Anderson-Sett put the sheet—used for the police—over the old man's room. There isn't much doubt that he would have killed Marden at once, but Marden would have been looking for him, and he had been committed and was ready-made as a stooge. He hid in the vault when he knew that the police were looking for him, and Anderson-Sett broke into the vault by the trick step. It was Anderson-Sett who fired while the police were in the house, of course, and who killed old Marden and nearly made me a present to Jebb."

"What was the reason why Jebb was so well-disposed?" asked Corry.

"I think so," Manning said thoughtfully. "There is a man who keeps his mind off the jewels. He knows he could have killed Marden, but brought cold logic to bear on the situation—I might have argued that, although I might have tried to talk Marden into lying to protect me, I wouldn't kill him knowing there was no one else to blame. On the other hand, I had the evidence of his own senses, on the other the evidence of reason."

ON The first of October, Quinns 2 was opened in Boston.

Had the of New England Inquiry Agency staff mingled with the crowd; among them was Solino, now fully recovered. He had tried to talk to the newspaperman, Jebb, off duty, had brought his wife.

By far the greatest single attraction was a show of the fastened to the wall and given special lighting. In this were Marden jewels, recovered from the ground in the Marden Court, and put up for sale by the executors.

Manning saw Rebecca Marden and Bob Corry standing looking up at the Marden jewels. The girl had recovered from the shock and the worst from the grief. She looked quite lovely, but there wasn't any doubt that before long she would be Mrs. Robert Corry. Manning wondered why she was so much as she appeared the jewels.

When she turned away she was smiling.

Lorna said: "I'd like to paint her, John."

"I'd much rather you painted Lieutenant Jebb first," Manning said, and caught Jebb's eye.

"You're giving me the portrait as a souvenir."

They All Want Decent Mate

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My brother, who just came back from the navy, told me that he and some of his buddies were sitting around talking about what kind of girls they wanted to marry. And 9 out of 10 men said they wanted "nice, pure" girls.

But what puzzles me is this: I just finished my sophomore year at college, and some of us girls were sitting around the sorority house talking about what kind of men we wanted for husbands, and almost all the girls said they wanted an "experienced" man. This doesn't add up. Or does it?

FRANKLY PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Regardless of what they say, in their hearts, decent men or women prefer other decent men or women when it comes to marriage. "Experience" some women use this foursome get-together scheme to get next to somebody else's husband, but how does a wife combat it?

JUST THE WIFE

DEAR WIFE: She doesn't. She lets her husband field the wild ones.

DEAR ABBY: How can I make my older sister realize that she is robbing herself and her husband of the joys of parenthood? They have been married for 11 years and are still childless, although I know they both love children. I am sure the problem is my sister. She is so modest she won't even have a chest X-ray taken.

Shouldn't someone talk to her about it? She is 33 and her husband is 36 and they aren't getting any younger. She keeps saying, "One of these days I may go to a doctor." What do you think?

YOUNGER SISTER

DEAR SISTER: I think that when your sister becomes sufficiently concerned and eager to have a family, she will go to a doctor with no coaching from the sidelines.

DEAR ABBY: My mother says that you are the one I should write to because if you put this in your column a lot of people might see it and change their ways.

I am 12 years old. My father is a waiter in a very well-known restaurant. He has always been a
